What can the NAPHL do for YOU?

About The NAPHL

- 1) In its first season, the North American Prospects Hockey League was made up of 24 programs from across the country which compete at the Tier I Midget AAA level.
- 2) The NAPHL is comprised of six events (18U) five events (16U) and 3 events (14U) in which the teams participate for a league championship, the North American Prospects Hockey League season culminates with an NAPHL Top Prospects Tournament in early May.
- 3) NAPHL member teams will compete in all events, and a special player procurement system has been implemented by the NAHL, the only USA Hockey-sanctioned Tier II Junior A league in the country.
- 4) The USA Hockey-sanctioned NAPHL events utilize the USA Hockey Officiating Development Program and are designed to maximize the exposure of all the Midget student-athletes through the NAHL's high-profile recruiting events, which attract hundreds of, junior, college and professional scouts.

Exposure

- 1) The NAPHL prides itself on the exposure and promotion of all of its student-athletes to junior, college and professional scouts and coaches across North America.
- 2) In addition to comprehensive scouting guides and player profiles available at each of the NAPHL's events, updates on the league and its players are distributed weekly via e-mail to an extensive list of junior, college and professional teams.
- 3) Information is also highlighted through the league's Web site, NAPHL.net, where coaches and scouts can access detailed player information, including real-time statistics provided by Pointstreak.

Making the Right Decision...

- 1) The NAPHL and Mid-West Elite League are spring boards for serious hockey players who want to play junior, college, and professional hockey.
- 2) There are only four hockey programs in California that participate in these two leagues (see below).
- 3) If your serious about playing hockey at the next level and your not on one of these teams; getting the right exposure will be much harder for you, even if you're a player with exceptional hockey skills.
